

Write Up for the “God’s Hookups” Show: Divine Interventions

GOD’S HOOKUPS in my life have always been those unexplainable Divine Interventions that develop my ability to constantly activate the power of choice which always leads me deeper into knowledge of self.

When I lacked knowledge of self, I indulged in self-destructive behavior, made poor choices, inflicted pain onto myself and others, attracted low energy, and tolerated mistreatment all due to searching for myself outside of myself in people, things, titles, and perceptions. Life experiences have a profound impact on the development of an individual, and along my journey I’ve realized that powerful choices come with powerful outcomes. To gain knowledge of self, I had to go through the mud and experience growing pains. Although the process is never easy, the reward is always worth it.

I was presented with an opportunity from the Creator to sit-down, quiet my universe, and disconnect and separate from the things and people that did not sustain me. I was afraid in the beginning and rejected the opportunity, but ultimately, I made the decision to choose me: to pour into myself, pack light, find my way back, and get to the root of who I am- the conditions, environments, and choices that have all contributed to my development and output.

I am aware that I have been sent to share, to be, to feel, to reveal, and be the best of who I am. I am grateful for the insight of knowing myself, manifesting my visions, and operating in my sovereignty and birthright which all stems from The Divine Source.

I am a mother, and through writing this description, I was reminded by the words of Dr. Maya Angelou: “Tell the truth, to yourself first, and to the children.” Through Divine Intervention, I am determined and destined to be my best-self because my children will experience my choices both directly and indirectly which will influence and contribute to their growth, development, and the messages and energies that they put out. I honor that responsibility.
